Physical Conditioning Platoon — I can't imagine how many extra weeks or months of torturous pressure a recruit has to endure at boot camp when they're sent to the PCP. But kudos to those who make it through.

Another remedial platoon established at boot camp is the Medical Recovery Platoon, or MRP (sometimes called the "broke dick" platoon.) Recruits sent to this platoon are injured and need to medically recover before they can return to the normal boot camp platoons. By then, they usually can't return to their original platoon, though. They'll be placed in a different platoon in a later cycle. And for those who recovered and got through okay, kudos to you, too. :)
